GOULD-LYNDON IN 7-7 PARENTS DAY GAME

The Lyndon-Gould football game on Parents Day proved all that it had been heralded. The undefeated Vermonters did well to get off with a tie score. Two costly fumbles inside the 10 yard line and a missed tackle on an easy chance spoiled Gould's bid for a victory.

The Huskies scored in the first period after a 65 yard march which carried the ball to the one yard line from where Bean scored. Gordon Howe and Ray Chase made the best gains with 13 and 9 yards for their longest tries. Lowell boot-ed the extra point to give Gould a 7-0 lead.

The second period was hard fought and looked to be scoreless; but on the last play from scrimmage Bourlisse passed to R Allard who after slipping out of the arms of Bean scampered 27 yards to score. R Allard also scored the tying point as he rushed the "point after" through the center of the line.

In the last half both teams put on spirited rallies but neither team could score. In the closing minutes Lyndon connected for a 43 yard pass which threatened but there was time for only one more play.

The Gould line was again superb on the defense. Howe, Bean, and Chase were running their best of the year. The Huskies racked up 18 first downs to 9 for the visitors.

GOULD PLANNING CHRISTMAS SALE; THANKSGIVING SOCIAL

The first Fall meeting of the Guild was held in the Garland Memorial Chapel of the West Parish Congregational Church on Wednesday, Oct. 11. Devotions were led by Mrs Florence Emery. Mrs Barbara Kuzky presided at the meeting, having taken over the presidency following the resignation of Mrs Jane Kneeland.

Mrs Kuzky announced a tentative list of committees for the Christmas sale which will be held on Thursday, Dec. 7. The completed list of committees will be announced later. It was requested that the membership bring apron material to the next meeting.

The intention to hold a Thanksgiving Social on Nov. 22 was announced. Families will be invited, the admission being a gift for the food basket.

As chairman of the program committee for 1950, Mrs Ruth Ames asked the meeting to divide into groups to suggest aims, goals and ideas in general for the Guild to follow in the coming year. The suggestions from each group were read, and these included such things as having educational meetings, having a book fair, having outside speakers, doing craft work, emphasizing religion, having more music and many more ideas. Some of the ideas have already been included in future plans.

It was suggested that a Book and Food Sale be held early in November, and the membership is asked to bring books to the next meeting.

Entertainment for the evening was colored slides shown by Miss Doryce Arndt of her trip to the Caspe. This was followed by refreshments.

The next meeting of the Guild will be a pot luck supper served by the executive committee in the church dining room at 6:30 p. m. on Wednesday, Oct. 25. All members are urged to attend.

RECORD TURN-OUT FOR 1950 GOULD PARENTS WEEK-END

Last Saturday and Sunday the parents of Gould Academy students were guests of the school and were deeply impressed by the varied and interesting program provided by their children under the supervision of the faculty.

The football game—Lyndon Institute of Vermont vs. Gould—set the stage on Saturday. The game brought many thrills with the home team rising to their best play of the season to tie a highly regarded opponent 7-7. Following the game, the parents were guests of the Headmaster and Mrs Ireland for coffee and tea at the Headmaster's home. The home economics students under the supervision of Miss Whitney aided materially in the preparation of the delicious refreshments. Mrs Arthur Walters and Mrs Arthur Felton of Melrose, Mass., served as pourers with the wives of faculty members assisting in various capacities. There were nearly 200 names on the guest book when all were served.

While the parents were having their party, the students enjoyed themselves at the William Bingham Gymnasium with dancing.

At 5:30 the parents with their children gathered at Gehring Hall for a buffet supper. About three hundred were very efficiently handled and fed by the school kitchen staff and student waiters. Many parents remarked that they now knew why the students "raved" so enthusiastically about the Gould food.

At 7:30 the Chapman Club, the school's musical group, under the direction of Miss Ann Griggs presented the following program which was well received by both parents and students.

for the Parents' Day activities and together with Paul Thurston, Bethel, and Leon Walker of Portland, and Dr Payson Smith of Orono, held their fall Executive Meeting at Hanscom Hall.

PLAYERS PLAN TO GIVE TWO ENTERTAINMENTS IN YEAR

The Bethel Players held their first meeting of the 1950-51 season at the Community Room Monday evening with Vice-President Roland Cline presiding.

Mrs Harlan Hutchins, the treasurer, reported a substantial cash balance with which to finance current and proposed activities and the secretary, Mrs Richard Waldron, read notes of appreciation from the three local Scouting groups for donations that had enabled all to carry on to the utmost on programs that would have been either drastically curtailed or completely omitted.

In a move to guard a hard earned reputation for providing the best in amateur theatricals it was voted to concentrate on two major public presentations each season, one to be an outstanding stage play and the other a minstrel type entertainment.

The fact that a larger membership is necessary was conceded by all present and a general discussion of ways and means to enlist added personnel to the roster was carried on at length. Interested persons in all age groups are invited to attend the monthly meetings which are highlighted by first class entertainment, adequate provision being made for all who relish a little refreshment near the evening's close.

The next season will be on Monday, Nov. 20, with Mrs Addison Saunders and Mrs Murray Thurston the entertainment committee. Mrs Roger Potter and Mrs Harlan Hutchins will have charge of refreshment details.

TO SEEK BLUE CROSS MEMBERS NEXT WEEK

"The Annual Blue Cross Enrollment for residents of Oxford County will be conducted by the Associated Hospital Service of Maine during the week of October 23-28," it was announced today by Walter P. Black, enrollment manager for the service. Ending its 12th year of non-profit hospital service the Associated Hospital Service of Maine now has more than 200,000 members or nearly one third of the total population of Maine. This is an increase of over 24,000 members in the past year, Black disclosed.

During the past year more than 32,000 Blue Cross subscribers were hospitalized for a total of over 200,000 days of hospital care. The Associated Hospital Service of Maine paid member hospitals more than one and a half million dollars for the above services. Black further stated that in 1949 the Rumford Community Hospital, Rumford, member hospital in Oxford County, rendered 848 days of care to 177 Blue Cross subscribers at a saving to the subscribers of more than $8,726.40.

Enrollment centers will be set up by Stephen Woodberry, enrollment representative, at the Casco Bank and Trust Co., in Bethel, South Paris, Buckfield, and Fryeburg, Norway National Bank, Norway.

Features of the 1950 contract are unlimited x-ray benefits, unlimited laboratory service benefits, increased allowance against private room charges, increased allowance for medications and increased allowance on non-member hospital care outside the State of Maine.

Residents who are interested need only to secure forms from one of the above locations fill them out and turn them in with their first small payment of dues. Two-thirds of all Blue Cross members have their entire families covered, thus having no worry regarding necessary hospitalization of family members.

HOWE OUT WITH LEG INJURY

—GOULD TRAVELS TO BERLIN

This Saturday the Gould Huskies will have another tough chore as they lock horns with Berlin High Mountaineers on the New Hampshire gridiron. Berlin is having one of its most successful seasons and they are determined to put an end to Gould's long string of victories over them. The Huskies received a severe jolt when they learned shortly after the Lyndon game that their star runner and defensive back Gordon Howe will be out perhaps the remainder of the season. A severe leg injury has sidelined him. Coach Scott is madly trying out men to try to fill the position.

DANGER ON THE AIR

America's most strategic communities, in which large concentrations of people or important groupings of industries are centered, have begun to organize for the eventuality of an atom bomb attack and other forms of airborne invasion, such as, for instance, parachute raiders. If the day comes when Soviet military power strikes boldly at the heart of our nation's strength, the population in these strategic communities will be alerted by radio and other means, setting into motion intricately worked-out mass evacuation and defense plans.

For successful execution of such emergency plans, the whole population must spring into action within the space of a few minutes. Bells, whistles and other signals will set plans in motion and summon the population to radio sets, telephones and public loud speakers for detailed instructions. Thus the mass communication facilities become the very heart of our civilian defense—and also the No. 1 objectives for invading forces and their fifth columnists.

The Technique

Hitler's technicians found it of great strategic importance to send waves of paratroopers into cities in the pathway of the Wehrmacht and seize the radio stations. In some countries, Nazi fifth columnists who had been posing as loyal citizens suddenly produced machine guns and seized the stations. Then an unsuspecting French or Belgian or Dutch announcer would interrupt programs and announce: "Emergency order! All citizens remain indoors with blinds drawn!" The civilian population was thus perfectly controlled by the invaders.

The Communist Red Army and its fanatical fifth column, highly organized in every nation in the civilized world, have perfected this Nazi total war strategy and added the dualistic infiltration technique. They used it with decisive effect in Korea. In the United States, where virtually every family has a radio, radio stations would be invaluable. In fact, our radio industry long has been one of the high priority objectives of infiltrating Communists.

"One Voice . . . In a recent issue of the RADIO-TELEVISION DAILY, important publication of the industry, the danger of American fifth column Communists and fellow travelers was recognized in the following terse warning: "In an emergency (at any given time) it would require only three persons (Communists or sympathizers) to REACH 50 MILLION PEOPLE WITH A MESSAGE! One engineer in master control at a radio network. One director in a radio studio. One voice before a microphone."

The popular magazine, BROADCASTING, also warned: "Can you conceive of anyone more potent when an emergency strikes than the man at the network mike? That should be sufficient to guide broadcast management in the screening of personnel." And last June, J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, who will have the responsibility of "neutralizing" the fifth column in any emergency, told a Congressional Committee: "Communist efforts toward infiltration have been intensifying in . . . the communications industry."

Red Influence In view of these facts, the recent publication of a report by a group of former high placed FBI men would be of interest in the American public. The report said in part: "With radio, in most American homes and with approximately 5 million TV sets in use, the Communist and Communist front organizations have been able to use radio and TV as a means of mass propaganda and to whom activities they've participated. The former FBI men responsible for this report are not 'witch hunters.' They have a genuine concern for the safety of our nation. They say Communism has gained powerful influence in the strategic communications field. They want the public to know the facts. They are putting their finger on a real danger when the time is not yet 'too late.'"

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING

Don't Be Self-Conscious

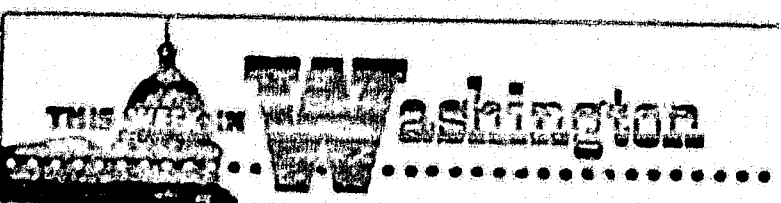

WHEN IRVING J. VELEN, Chicago, Ill., was 12 years old a catastrophe occurred that it took him years to recover from; and up almost to the time of his recovery it looked as if he never would recover.

One cold night, he went to sleep in the kitchen of his home. When he regained full consciousness he was in the hospital. You see, there had been a kettle of water setting over a flaming gas jet, and someone in turning off the gas from under the kettle hit the pilot light accidentally and then left the room. Of course, the gas soon filled the room with the sleeping boy lying near the stove. When he became partially awake, he had a terrific headache and a pain shot through his body like a needle being injected. He thought he was going to die.

Well, he got over the gas fumes, but he didn't get over his fright. When he heard a song in school with the word heaven in it, he became faint. Anything remotely connected with death terrified him. Soon he began to stutter; this gave him an inferiority complex; the inferiority complex made him stammer more and more and to a great degree. He couldn't say "eighth" when he wanted to leave an elevator at the eighth floor; he had to say "nine" and then walk down a flight. He became so self-conscious that he hated being around people, while to talk to them was torture.

Then one day he noticed that he could talk to a dog with never a stammer. Why was this, he asked himself. It came to him all of a sudden that he wasn't afraid of what the dog was thinking about him. That thought was a revelation; it seemed almost to be a miracle shot. He could also talk to children and not be afraid. He wasn't thinking of himself at all when he talked to children. So he began going in for sports, played ball and basketball—and won championships in time. But he still stuttered when talking to adults. Even in college public speaking class. So he forced himself to join a first time. Everyone was kind, seemed not to notice his stammering. After a few weeks, he had gained so much confidence that his stammering amounted to practically nothing. He told himself that it didn't matter. He got better and better; now he has almost brought about the cure that he knows will come in a very short time.

I am sure of it, too, Irving, you plucky guy!

MAYORS AND CIVIL OFFICIALS

CHIEFS of the larger cities of the nation have been in conference with officials of the national security resources board and the war munitions board, and were given an audience with the President over the question of civilian defense.

The mayors were given maps of their own cities pointing out the areas likely to be bombed by a potential enemy and they discussed with the federal officials the question of financing the civilian defense, including evacuation and other measures deemed necessary to guard the civilian population in case of attack by an enemy, either by regulation or atomic bombings.

The congress was just about ready to pass a bill which would have put a quinine to slot machines, the "one armed bandit." The senate had passed the bill earlier. The house passed the bill with amendments which provided it would be unlawful to ship slot machines to states where their operation is illegal. Then up stepped Senator George W. Malone of Nevada, where slot machines and all other forms of gambling are legal. On the theory that Nevada's slot machines are manufactured in Illinois and have to be repaired there, the senator from Nevada started a filibuster which lasted for 11 hours, a filibuster which rivaled the record in the senate. Finally the senate gave in and the bill "went over" and did not come to a vote. Senator Malone, Republican, picked his time when the senate was close to a recess vote to make his filibuster and thus thwart the voice of both house and senate on the slot machine bill.

Here is one result of the anti-subversive measure, voted by the President and passed by congress over his veto. You agents join Communist outfit and play the part of Communist to get evidence. They know practically everything there is to know going on inside the Communist cell. They keep suspected saboteurs under surveillance and could place them under arrest at any time. They could round up hundreds of subversives overnight if necessary.

turns as "bait" to transmit propaganda to the American public. Substantial funds earned by Communists and sympathizers employed in the industry find their way in the Party through contributions to "fronts." The former FBI men said.

The 51-page report, entitled "Red Channels," but approximately 110 errors, directions, communications, writers, technicians, engineers, musicians and producers of radio and TV and gives the Communist or Communist front organizations to which they reportedly have belonged, affiliated with, or to whose activities they've participated.

The first paper in North Dakota appeared in Bismarck 1873.

The Civil War developed an appetite for news among the people.

But these Communies will defy the new subversive law, so if the FBI men register, as all Communies are supposed to register under the law, they tip off their identity. If the agents don't register, the government will be forced to prosecute them. There is every reason to believe that the department of justice will not enforce this law and will rely on existing statutes to round up and bring to justice the known Communists which the F.B.I. has spotted over the years.

The U.S. employment farm labor advisory committee met recently with government and farm officials and have assurance that every effort will be made to maintain high level of farm output by providing adequate manpower and equipment.

The advisory committee is made up of representatives of farm labor employers from each state, farm organizations and larger processing groups. It recommended that USES intensify efforts to bring about and maintain efficient distribution of available domestic and foreign farm labor on a strictly voluntary basis, unless and until an all-out war develops.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin told the group that because of vulnerability of farm labor to industrial drains, agricultural labor would be given a preference rating alongside defense production industries. Recruitment and replacement of farm labor by USES, he said, will get the same facilities and attention as industrial labor.

Secretary Brannan told the meeting that the mobilization period finds agriculture in top shape for maximum production and that the future holds no need for controls. He said that the nation's soil is in top condition and that the number of tractors and other machinery has doubled since the end of World War II. At the same time, draftless will not be given any preferential treatment insofar as farm labor is concerned.

According to Col. Daniel O. Omer, general counsel for selective service, it is not now planned to take men from the 24 to 25 age group, nor is it expected to take men over 26 unless total war comes.

The modern nylon plant may be taking away some of his business, but the little silkworm has a laugh at two coming. It is his thread-making principle that the nylon manufacturers have copied almost exactly. In both cases, a liquid is forced through a tiny hole, solidifying into thread upon contact with the air. While machinery achieves this with a series of small holes, the World Book Encyclopedia states that the silkworm ejects his fluid through a minute opening in his upper lip.

AT THE TIME this is written

there has been no definite decision upon the procedure of the United Nations' forces when they reach the 38th parallel in Korea. Circumstances may, and probably will, alter the present setup; but at this moment it is a tough decision to make. If it is decided to continue the advance northward, it may bring us into conflict with Red China or even Russia. If we stop at the 38th parallel, then all this bloodshed will seem wasted from a military standpoint, though not from a political standpoint.

The happiest solution might well be a compromise in which the U. N. agrees not to cross the line, provided a free, open and supervised election is at once arranged for. Such an agreement should include the immediate release of all personnel held prisoner by the North Koreans, but the retention by the U. N. of North Korean prisoners until after the elections—allowing them however the vote. Who would feed these prisoners in a devastated South Korea would be one of the difficult problems of such a plan; but North Korea should be compelled to send in the required supplies.

Unfortunately, a decision must be made at once—and doubtless will have been when this goes to press; and upon this quick decision may possibly rest the condition of war or peace. Let us pray for inspiration in those who will decide. If their judgment is right and if the Korean people are granted an honest election, the example set by this brilliantly executed but necessarily devastating campaign may forestall other uprisings and aggressions of a like sort. Maybe it won't be so easy for the Red overlords to concoct aggressions in small nations if the people are able to grasp the significance of the death and destruction and misery which await them, and follow, such outbreaks—regardless of the outcome.

The North Korean armies have already suffered pretty heavily, but the leaders who are directly responsible for the act of aggression should be executed.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLDTIMERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following contribution, from J. Risor Camryn of Seattle, Wash., is addressed to the conductor of this column. It refers to a picture of a sleigh similar to a "cutler" which was passed off as a picture of an item from Mrs. James Montgomery of Blackwell, Okla., recalling when folks would hitch old Dobbin to a bobbed to go to a neighbor's for the evening. Mr. Camryn's item is properly illustrated (we hope!).

If the shafts were placed differently (attached to the body, not the runners, and offset), it would be what was called a "cutler." The cutter with its offset runners allowed the runners to slide in fresh snow not cut up by wheeled vehicles. Bobbeds were fundamental to a regular farm wagon with four runners made to fit the axles instead of the wheels. The wagon boxes, filled with straw and young folks, off for a ride in the moonlight and snow-covered countryside, all made an institution. It was the forerunner of today's hayride parties. Incidentally, your artist has the sleighbells around the horses' midsection. They usually were around the horse's neck, where they got more shaking up.

From L. Jean Kahr of Cincinnati, O.: I remember when the Ohio river would freeze so solidly during the winter that boats could not haul the freight and two horses hitched to wagons was the only means of river transportation.

The modern nylon plant may be taking away some of his business, but the little silkworm has a laugh at two coming. It is his thread-making principle that the nylon manufacturers have copied almost exactly. In both cases, a liquid is forced through a tiny hole, solidifying into thread upon contact with the air. While machinery achieves this with a series of small holes, the World Book Encyclopedia states that the silkworm ejects his fluid through a minute opening in his upper lip.

SCHOOL NEWS

by Norman Millett, Grade VI — Tuesday was a very interesting day. In the morning we went after some milk weed which we studied. We also brought in souvenirs. The one I liked best was a belt made of beads and was made by hand. Another which interested me was a pair of pliers made out of one piece of wood. These were made by a man nearly ninety. A few other things brought were a canoe paddle, sundial, pins, foreign money, things carved from wood and a very small egg. The one which some of us did not like was a huge rubber spider. It looked much too real!

Our much needed rain came on Wednesday and Thursday, so we had to play inside.

We started our Christmas presents this week, too.

This is the end of six weeks of school and we have had perfect attendance.

WHY YOUR TICKET IS PUNCHED

WHENEVER you ride a train, the conductor punches your ticket to cancel it. Now, no two of these ticket punches are the same. Each punch, like a human fingerprint, leaves a mark that has no duplicate. This variety in punch marks is part of the Canadian National's accounting system.

The hole the conductor punched in your ticket today may make the outline of a lady's head, a high button shoe or a top hat. In any event it will be unique. Identifying not only the conductor but also the section of the CNR's lines over which you were traveling when the ticket was punched. There are 2,000 different punch marks in use.

The railway will never run short of these punch marks for while there are 2,000 in use, the company has 1,500 more dies. Punch marks include the letters of the alphabet and animate and inanimate objects such as a star, a mushroom, a half-moon, a basket, an anchor, a fish, a trowel, the four symbols of playing cards, a horse's head and many others.

As we have said, they have a direct bearing on the accounting system. They are a factor in proving that a portion of a ticket is refundable. The railway doesn't expect a passenger to pay for more than he has received. If you have used only a portion of your ticket, the company is prepared to return your money on the remainder. However, to make refunds possible, the railway must maintain an accurate tally of the tickets and parts of tickets that have been honored on its trains. The punches by its conductors provide this tally.

Let's suppose you bought a ticket from Montreal to Winnipeg and that for some reason or other, you left the train at Capreol. Out of Montreal and Ottawa the conductors will leave their punch marks (a diamond and horseshoe) to indicate that you travelled the distance of their runs, that is, Montreal to Capreol.

On return to Montreal, you apply for a refund from Capreol to Winnipeg. Your application and ticket are forwarded to the auditor of passenger accounts office. There, by consulting the records, it is found that the diamond belongs to conductor Smith on the Montreal-Ottawa run and that the horseshoe punch mark belongs to conductor Jones on the Ottawa-Capreol run.

By checking the daily ticket report it is determined that these conductors were on duty when you made the trip. Hence, the punch marks on your ticket when checked against the records show that you travelled only from Montreal to Capreol. Therefore, the Capreol-Winnipeg part of your ticket is refundable.

Since punches play an important role in making refunds, they are issued with care. When a conductor receives a new punch, its particulars are filed with his superintendent and with the auditor of passenger accounts. At the latter's office, an additional record for each punch is maintained. It is called the Record of Ticket Punches. This record contains all the transfers made of a punch until it goes out of service. Something of a master record also is kept there and is used as a ready reference. This record lists all the punches in use and names the conductors to whom they have been issued and the runs on which they are used. All the punches bear the marks of the conductors so that when a conductor turns in his ticket report, his punch mark is his signature.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel, recently made a speech on the highly important subject of "biggest" in business which was afterwards reprinted in The Reader's Digest. It is one of the most cogent arguments yet made on behalf of those who believe that the steel industry is a vital part of the nation's economic life.

The tone of Mr. Fairless' feeling is found in his opening: "Monday I hope to get back to Pittsburgh. I hope to find out what's happened to the steel business. But the past few months I have been specializing in Washington investigations of 'big' business, and Washington has certainly been specializing in me from the time the United States Steel Corporation was organized 50 years ago. It has been subjected to almost constant investigation by various agencies of the Government, and for the past ten years I myself have been on the business end of most of these investigations. I have been through so many Congressional inquiries that no self-respecting skeleton would hide in my closet on a bet."

Mr. Fairless then goes into many ramifications of the monopoly charges, using, as an example, the industry with which he is familiar — steel. He observes: "Some of our Washington critics insist that there is no competition in the steel industry. Apparently they never heard of Bethlehem—or a couple of hundred other competitors of ours who are doing very nicely, thank you. Sometimes I wish these critics could join our sales forces for a few weeks and try to sell a little steel. I think they would find out what competition really is."

Moving on, Mr. Fairless deals with the idea that a man can no longer go into the business of making steel because an alleged monopoly won't let him. This, he says, is ridiculous. The small business man cannot become a steel maker simply for reasons of money. A steel furnace alone now costs $12,000,000, a plant capable of turning out hot-rolled bars $50,000,000 or so, and an installation for making light plates and cold-rolled sheets more than $100,000,000. In other words, steel making is big business because it requires big money.

Yet the significant point is that this does not mean that the small business man is unable to enter the steel business. Mr. Fairless says that he can set himself up in the business of fabricating steel for a relatively small investment, and can turn out one or more of these:

ROAD DEATHS REPORTED IN MAINE DURING SEPTEMBER

September's highway fatalities took the lives of 12 persons in as many traffic accidents and brought our total deaths for this year to 112 — an increase of one over a similar period of last year. This is a reduction from 22 killed last year during this month and is the lowest fatality rate Maine has ever experienced for September with the single exception of 1944, a war year, when 11 persons were killed in traffic accidents.

Also encouraging is the fact that accidents in Maine are holding at last year's level while the national figure indicates an 11% increase.

As to the reasons for these September accidents, our records show that 6 of the 12 killed were pedestrians and in 75 cases the driver been held criminally liable. From this we can readily see the need for greater caution on the part of pedestrians as well as a better compliance with laws regulating their use of the roads. The other six fatalities were the result of disregarding stop signs, excessive speed, improper bike riding and the use of intoxicating liquor.

We are now entering upon the most hazardous season of the year. As a caution to pedestrians we again remind them that the longer hours of darkness constitute increased hazards. Pedestrians should not be too trusting by taking it for granted that the driver will always see them.

Let us again emphasize the fall slogan of the National Safety Council: WATCH OUT WHEN IT'S DARK OUT. — Sgt. John de Winter, Director, Division of Traffic and Safety, Maine State Police.

And the record shows that a great many small business men have done just this. Thirty-three years ago there were nearly as many concerns making steel as there are now. But today there are 12,000 more concerns fabricating steel. And for every worker employed in steel 25 years ago, there have jobs today.

What is true of steel is true of all the great basic industries—motors, chemicals, chain retailing, and so on. It is a statistical fact that the big business has, by reason of its existence, opened the door to success for a legion of small businesses. That is one of the reasons why a great many informed people doubt both the wisdom and the validity of many of the government's antitrust suits and investigations.

MAINE CHAMBER IN FAVOR OF BOND ISSUE FOR ROADS

Bond issue financing for Maine highway construction was endorsed by the Maine State Chamber of Commerce board of directors at its third quarterly meeting in Portland this week.

Holding that the pay-as-you-go method of financing has outlived its usefulness and is not working out to the best interests of the State, the Maine Chamber directors voted unanimously to favor the bond issue for state highway financing.

Pointing to mounting maintenance costs and the inability of these expenditures to keep Maine's highway system abreast of the times the Chamber directors are preparing specific recommendations to place before the 95th Maine legislature which will convene in January.

The Chamber directors announced no action at this time concerning the amount of the bond issue they will support or conditions governing the expenditure which will undoubtedly be included in final recommendations. An intensive research program has been organized in order to insure maximum cooperation with other organizations interested in highway problems confronting the State.

THE LAST LAP . . . Deanne Sampson, London, England, puts one over on kitty as she finishes saucer of cream for the animated feline. Deanne likes the novel way of drinking milk.

VEGETABLE PLATTERS can be pretty and nourishing enough to serve for luncheon parties if they're planned for color and flavor contrast. Here are some suggestions:

Serve a rice or noodle ring with creamed mushrooms, and then add color and flavor to the same plate with buttered beets and buttered broccoli or brussels sprouts. Spinach ring filled with creamed onions makes a pretty center for a vegetable plate. Alternate small mounds of parsleyed potatoes and carrots and peas around the spinach.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Cheese Fondue
(Serves 4)
1/2 cup ripe olives
4 slices day-old bread
1 cup cooked peas
1 (2 1/2-ounce) jar dried beef
1 cup grated American cheese
2 eggs
2 cups scalded milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
Black pepper
Cut olives from pits into large chunks. Cut bread into cubes. In 1 1/2-quart casserole, layer bread, peas, shredded beef, cheese and olives. Beat eggs slightly, stir in milk, salt and pepper. Pour over ingredients in casserole. Bake in a moderately slow (325°) oven for 45 minutes or until set.

kernel corn as another idea for vegetable plates. Round this out with string beans cooked with onion and bits of bacon, and steamed or baked acorn squash.

Stuffed green peppers are a good substantial start on vegetable dinners. Add creamed potatoes, roasted carrots and buttered lima beans.

There's good texture and color contrast in this vegetable lunch when each-flavor is given. Harvard beets and buttered green beans.

Serve cheese muffins with this vegetable luncheon to make it thoroughly satisfying stuff. Bake muffins with bread stuffing, then bake. Add corn fillings and buttered lima beans to the platter.

Nobody's Business

Again we have received an anonymous contribution, publication of which seems to be expected. However, we will say that its subject deals with criticism of young people and sets forth the opinion that older folk might find better things to do than to magnify the things they see and hear.

From what we have heard and seen, we do not think that people, young or old, are much different now than in any other age. It is encouraging to notice the good behavior of young people in general which certainly compares favorably with that of preceding groups.

We believe that historians will find that too little of good can be recorded to the credit of the present responsible parties. This generation (say from 40 years of age up) has muffed a record number of chances to maintain or to improve standards of American living. Reading and drinking habits are among the young folks' problems and we hope and believe that they will be better able to find the solution.

A WORD TO WORK WITH

Today's word is regular. According to Roget's Thesaurus it may be used to mean uniform, complete, orderly, by the rule, with conformity, periodic, symmetric, or habitual. Webster tells us that it comes from the Latin regula, meaning rule and has for synonyms normal and typical.

"Be ye not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind," says Paul in Roman 12:2. What regulates your action? Is it your thought? Yes. That is why it is important to keep thought right with God and man. Our model is Christ Jesus. Thought conformed to his is truly regular.

Sometimes a desire for popularity tempts one to wrong-doing, suggesting that he will be called a "regular" fellow or "one of the gang." If he will take a drink or indulge in some other form of evil, and so be merry and gay. This suggestion is a snare and is always to be rejected and destroyed.

In his letter to the Philippians Paul writes, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." All men and women who follow him are truly regular and are commended in ever-increasing degree. In this mind is true comfort.
